

Abstract

A method of providing transaction-based packet switched data services on a wireless network is presented. A method of managing a wireless network includes receiving a user request 5 for a packet switched data service, determining a provider for the service according to stored policies, and determining a billing arrangement for the service according to the stored policies.

20378925.doc

10066156.020102